Santa Cruz Debuts 000 12 Fret Acoustic

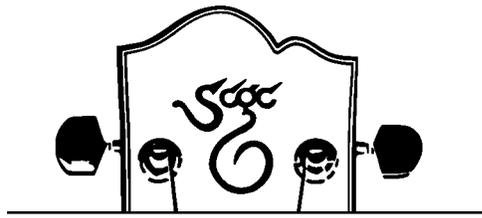

SANTA CRUZ, CALIFORNIA. Santa Cruz Guitar Company's 000 12 Fret model offers a combination of vintage styling and a contemporary approach to tone. The 000 12 Fret has a smaller body than a dreadnought, creating a sound all its own, balanced for a sweet, even sound without an extra emphasis on bass response.

Available with either a solid or slotted headstock, the 000 12 Fret features an Indian rosewood body and sides bound in ivoroid with wood black/white/black purfling, an ebony fingerboard with exquisite ivoroid/black/ivoroid multiple binding to match the headstock's binding, and a Sitka spruce top with herringbone purfling. The neck is set with 12 frets clear of the body, in traditional 000 styling, utilizing a 25.385" fretboard scale length and a nut width of 1³/₄". Further adorning the 000 12 Fret is an ebony headstock overlay with the Santa Cruz Guitar Company's distinctive logo inlaid, plus an OM-style pickguard.

For the connoisseur, a limited number of 000 12 Fret guitars are also available with master-grade Brazilian rosewood back and sides and an Adirondack spruce top. With its special enhancements, the instrument is nothing short of stunning.

Further information on the 000 12 Fret is available from Santa Cruz Guitar Company, 328 Ingalls St., Santa Cruz, CA 95060.
